I think it was around 3-4 years ago, I happened to try out a new Spanish restaurant in Korea with one of my closest friends. We had some nice Spanish cuisine there.

Part 2 sample answer

It was called Paella, and there were many kinds of it but my friend and I tried the seafood one. It looked like some kinds of stir-fried rice, so I didn't expect much before I actually tried it.

Part 2 sample answer

Well, as far as I can remember, it was really new to me. It was so exotic, not like Korean or European food that I've eaten before. Although it looked like stir-fried rice, it actually tasted more like risotto. The rice wasn't that dry and seafood like shrimps and mussels were amazing. Also I felt it a bit salty but scrumptious.

Also it was totally unusual as I've never thought about trying Spanish food before. I like trying new things out in general, but never had chances to go and eat Spanish food. I was so satisfied after trying it. It was really nice indeed.
